PCS and Company shall hereinafter collectively be referred to as the "Parties" and individually as the "Party".

WHEREAS, the Parties desire to discuss the possibility of entering into commercial transactions or relationships (the "Purpose"). In order to further the Purpose, and in order for the Parties to share or receive information under the terms that will protect the confidentiality and proprietary nature of such information, the Parties desire to enter into this Agreement.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements herein contained and other good and valuable consideration (the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged), the Parties covenant and agree as follows:

1. Definition of Confidential Information. For their mutual benefit, the Parties named above plan to exchange certain confidential information, and the Party disclosing such information shall be referred to as the "Discloser" and the Party receiving such information as the "Recipient." Each of the Parties acknowledges that the terms and conditions of this Agreement, the existence of any discussions between the Parties, including their respective parents, subsidiaries and affiliates, and information concerning each of the Parties' businesses and other information, including their respective parents, subsidiaries and affiliates, including but not limited to insurance, intellectual property, computer software, technology and programs, source code, product plans, designs, formulae, processes, techniques, drawings, diagrams, visual demonstrations, ideas, concepts, costs, prices, names, customer lists, vendor lists, finances, marketing plans, advertising, commercial or sales materials, business opportunities, personnel, research, development or know-how, and other data in oral, written, graphic, electronic, or any other form or medium whatsoever will be considered confidential (the "Confidential Information"). Confidential Information also includes information obtained by the Recipient which is proprietary or confidential to the Discloser whether or not owned or developed by the Discloser, which is not generally known by the Recipient, and which the Recipient obtains knowledge of, through or as a result of, the relationship established hereunder with the Discloser, access to the Discloser's premises, or communications with the Discloser's employees, business partners or independent contractors. Confidential Information shall also include information disclosed to the Recipient by third parties at the direction of the Discloser, as well as any information of the Discloser or a third party that relates to the Purpose, which is understood by a reasonable Recipient from the context of disclosure or from the information itself, to be confidential. Confidential Information does not include information that:

(a) is now or subsequently becomes generally available to the public through no fault or breach on the part of the Recipient;

(b) the Recipient can demonstrate to have had rightfully in its possession prior to disclosure to the Recipient by the Discloser provided that such prior possession is capable of being proven via written evidence alone that would be admissible in a court of law;

(c) is independently developed by the Recipient without the use of any of the Discloser's Confidential Information, provided that such independent development is capable of being proven via written evidence alone that would be admissible in a court of law;

(d) the Recipient rightfully obtains from a third party who has the right to transfer or disclose it; or

(e) is required to be disclosed by court order or other lawful governmental action, but only to the extent so ordered, and provided that the Recipient shall promptly notify the Discloser so that the Discloser may attempt to obtain a protective order either restricting or preventing such disclosure (at Discloser's sole cost and expense). Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Recipient may disclose Confidential Information if reasonably required to be disclosed by a regulatory agency or examiner in connection with any routine audit, examination or order of said regulatory agency or examiner. Recipient shall not be required to notify Discloser of any such audit or examination so long as Discloser is not the subject of such audit or examination.

2. Non-disclosure and Non-Use of Confidential Information.

A Recipient shall not release, disclose, publish, or communicate a Discloser's Confidential Information or make it available to any person other than their employees, respective officers, directors, managers, partners, members, advisors (including consultants, financial advisors, attorneys, consultants and contractors), potential and actual sources of financing and/or capital and agents of the Recipient (collectively the "Representatives") who reasonably need to know the Confidential Information, and which Representatives are bound to protect the received Confidential Information from unauthorized use or disclosure under the terms of a written agreement with the Recipient. The Recipient shall cause its Representatives to observe and perform his or her obligations under any such agreement to the extent that such obligations relate to the protection of any such received Confidential Information. Such Recipient agrees not to use Confidential Information otherwise for its own or any third party's benefit without the prior written approval of an authorized representative of the Discloser in each instance. In all instances the Recipient shall be responsible for protecting and maintaining the confidentiality of the Confidential Information.

To the extent that any Confidential Information includes materials subject to the attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine or any other applicable privilege concerning pending or threatened legal proceedings or government investigations, each Party understands and agrees that the Parties have a commonality of legal interest with respect to such matters and it is their mutual desire, intention and understanding that the sharing of such material is not intended to, and shall not, waive or diminish in any way the confidentiality of such material or its continued protection under the attorney-client privilege or other applicable privilege. All Confidential Information furnished by either Party that is entitled to protection under the attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine or other applicable privilege shall remain entitled to such protection under these privileges, this Agreement, and under the common legal interest and joint defense doctrine. Nothing contained herein shall be deemed to constitute a waiver of the attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine or other applicable privilege. The disclosure of any Confidential Information pursuant to this Agreement is not intended to be, and shall not operate as, a waiver of any such privilege, in whole or in part, and the receiving Party shall make no assertion of any such waiver.

3. Ownership of Confidential Information. Each of the Parties acknowledges and agrees that all Confidential Information is and shall remain the exclusive property of the Discloser and nothing in this or any document relating to Recipient's engagement with the Discloser or any course of conduct between Discloser and Recipient shall be deemed to grant Recipient any right in or to all or any portion of the Confidential Information.

4. Return of Confidential Documents. Upon the earlier of a request by the Discloser or termination of this Agreement, Recipient shall, and shall direct its Representatives, at Recipient's own cost and expense, promptly (but in no event more than ten (10) days after termination or the date such request is received) return or destroy (at Discloser's option), and delete if in electronic form, all of Discloser's Confidential Information (including all copies or modifications thereof, extracts, documents, records and any tangible material containing or reflecting the Confidential Information) in Recipient's, and its Representatives', possession or control. Upon the return or destruction of such materials, an authorized representative of Recipient shall, upon request of the Discloser, certify in writing within three (3) business days of such request, certify in writing that all such materials have been either returned or destroyed in accordance with the foregoing; provided however: (a) the Recipient shall have no obligation to return or destroy Discloser's Confidential Information (including all copies or modifications thereof, extracts, documents, records and any tangible material containing or reflecting the Confidential Information) retained in standard archival or computer back-up systems or pursuant to the Recipient's normal document or e-mail retention practices in appropriately secure locations, and (b) the Recipient may retain Discloser's Confidential Information to the extent required by applicable law or regulation. Any information retained by the Recipient as described in subparagraphs (a) and (b) above shall remain subject to the obligations of confidentiality set forth in this Agreement for so long as it is retained and for three (3) years thereafter.

5. No Warranty. Each of the Parties warrants that it has the right to disclose the Confidential Information to the other Party. Otherwise, all information is provided "AS IS" and without any warranty, express, implied or otherwise, regarding its accuracy or performance.

6. No Obligations. No other obligations, express or implied, are created or assumed by either Party except as stated herein.

7. Scope of Agreement. Each of the Parties hereby specifically acknowledges that this Agreement shall in no way detract from or limit the power of a Discloser to carry on any other negotiations or otherwise deal with its Confidential Information in any manner whatsoever.

8. Injunctive Relief. Each of the Parties hereby acknowledges and expressly agrees that any breach by it of this Agreement which does or may result in loss of confidentiality of the Confidential Information will cause the other Party irreparable harm for which damages will not be an adequate remedy and, therefore, each Party hereby agrees that, in the event of any breach by it of this Agreement, the other Party shall have the right to seek injunctive relief or similar equitable relief such as specific performance against the continuing or further breach, without the necessity of proof of actual damages. This right to seek injunctive relief or similar equitable relief such as specific performance without necessity of proof of damage shall be in addition to any other right which such other Party may have under this Agreement or otherwise in law or in equity.

9. Governing Law. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey, without regard to its conflict of law principles. Any legal action or proceeding arising under this Agreement shall be brought exclusively in the courts located in New Jersey. Each of the Parties (i) irrevocably submits to the jurisdiction of the courts of Morris County, New Jersey for the purpose of any suit, action or other proceeding arising out of this Agreement, the subject matter hereof or any of the transactions contemplated hereby brought by either Party or its successors or assigns, and (ii) hereby waives, and agrees not to assert, by way of motion, as a defense or otherwise, in any such suit, action or proceeding, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, that the suit, action or proceeding is brought in an inconvenient forum, that the venue or the suit, action or proceeding is improper, or that this Agreement, or the subject matter hereof or any of the transactions contemplated hereby may not be enforced in or by such courts.

10. Assignment. Neither this Agreement, nor any rights hereunder, in whole or in part, shall be assignable or otherwise transferable by either Party except to an Affiliate, by operation of law, or through reorganization, merger or acquisition.

11. Duration and Termination. This Agreement shall commence on the Effective Date and terminate Two (2) years thereafter, provided, however, that the obligations of confidence shall survive for Five (5) years following termination.

12. Independent Parties. This Agreement shall not create a joint venture, partnership or other formal business relationship or entity of any kind, or an obligation to form any such relationship or entity. Each Party shall act as an independent contractor and not as an agent of the other Party, and neither shall have the authority to bind the other.

13. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in any number of counterparts, each of which shall constitute an original and all of which shall constitute one and the same instrument. This agreement shall become effective when signed by each of the Parties on any counterpart, whether or not all of the Parties have signed any one counterpart.

14. Modification. This Agreement may not be amended, supplemented or modified, nor may any obligation hereunder be waived orally, and no such amendment, supplement or modification shall be effective for any purpose unless it is in writing and signed in handwriting by the Parties. "Signed in handwriting by the Parties" means a manuscript signature, or authorized signature via either DocuSign or Adobe Sign by a Party or authorized Party representative and shall not include any (i) signature block, (ii) so-called "e-signature", (iii) email, instant messenger or similar electronic communication or series of communications or (iv) course of dealing or conduct.

15. Construction. This Agreement shall be construed as a whole, according to its fair meaning, and not in favor of or against either Party as drafter.

16. Severability. If any court of competent jurisdiction determines that any provision of this Agreement is invalid or unenforceable, then such validity or unenforceability shall have no effect on the other provisions hereof, which shall remain valid, binding and enforceable and in full force and effect. If any court of competent jurisdiction determinates that any provision of this Agreement is invalid or unenforceable, then the Parties agree that such invalid and unenforceable provision shall be construed by a court in a manner so as to provide the maximum valid and enforceable effect to the intent of the Parties expressed hereunder. The Parties agree to abide by the court's construction as if set forth herein. This provision shall apply to any construction by a court limiting the time and geographic scope of any portion of this Agreement.

17. Notices. Any notice, request, consent or approval required or permitted to be given under this Agreement or pursuant to law shall be sufficient if it is in writing, and if and when it is hand-delivered or sent by regular mail, with postage prepaid, to Recipient's address (as noted above) or by electronic mail with confirmation by recipient of notice.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the Parties hereto have caused this Agreement to be executed by their respective duly authorized officers and have duly executed and delivered this Agreement as of the date first above written.
